

"Blood sugar control in type 1 diabetes"

5.6.2015 09:15-10:15 HSZ HS D

Jeffrey I Joseph, D.O. - Thomas Jefferson University, Philadelphia, USA

Jeffrey I Joseph is a Professor of Anesthesiology at Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. He is the director of both the Jefferson Artificial Pancreas Center and the Anesthesiology Program for Translational Research. Aside from his research, for which he is renowned and respected in the diabetes technology community, he is a very successful entrepreneur and founder of three companies: RTM Vital Signs (implantable vital sign sensor), Capillary Biomedical (implantable CGM device, insulin delivery and artificial pancreas) and Animas Corporation (insulin pump therapy; was sold to Johnson and Johnson in 2006).

"New aspects of allergology"

6.6.2015 10:45-11:45 HSZ HS D

Prof. Dr. Erika Jensen-Jarolim - Messerli Research Institute, Vienna, Austria

Erika Jensen-Jarolim, MD is immunologist and has a double appointment as professor for Comparative Medicine between the Medical University Vienna and University of Veterinary Medicine Vienna. Before she served as professor and head of the Institute of Pathophysiology and Allergy Research at the Medical University Vienna. Her research is dedicated to the improvement of immunological diagnosis and therapies in allergy. She introduced the term allergooncology where focus is given on allergic mechanisms in cancer. Jensen-Jarolim is engaged in national and international boards and societies such as the Collegium Internationale Allergologicum.